OHIO UNIVERSITY.

ORIGIN OF THE UNIVERSITY.

The Ohio University is the oldest literary institution northwest of the Ohio river. Its existence was provided for as early as 1787 in the purchase made from the government of the United States by the Ohio Company of Associates. By the contract between these parties, two townships of land were set apart for the purpose of a University and placed under the care of the Legislature of the State. The University was organized under an act of the Legislature passed in 1804. Its trustees are appointed by State authority, and the Governor of the State is, ex-officio, a member of the Board.

LOCATION.

Athens, the seat of the University, is situated in the south-eastern part of the State. It is easily accessible from the east and west by the Marietta & Cincinnati Railroad and its branches, and from the central and northern portions of the State by the Columbus & Hocking Valley Railroad. By these routes it is about one hundred and sixty miles east from Cincinnati, and seventy-five miles south-east from Columbus.

LIBRARIES.

There are three libraries connected with the institution, which contain many rare and valuable books. These afford to students an opportunity to become acquainted with the best literature of the present and former times.

APPARATUS AND CABINET.

Much valuable apparatus has been procured for the various departments of mathematics, astronomy, physics and chemistry; and these subjects are illustrated by experiments.

The cabinet, which has recently been enlarged and rearranged, affords important aid in the study of mineralogy and geology. Contributions to this department are earnestly solicited from the friends of the institution.

During the past few months valuable contributions to the cabinet have been made. Among these are a case of rodents and one of birds, by Rev. John H. Acton; specimens of ore from Iron Mountain, Missouri, by Mr. S. S. Lindley; sea sands and mineral waters, by Mr. Leonard Brown; mineralogical specimens from Mt. Washington and elsewhere, by Mrs. J. D. Brown; fossils and relics, by Prof. R. S. Devol, and quite a number of specimens of various kinds by students and other individuals. For all of these acknowledgements are due, and it is very desirable that others shall aid in rendering this department more full and complete.

LITERARY SOCIETIES.

There are two literary societies in the University—the Athenian and the Philomathean. The members have opportunity to exercise themselves in declamation, composition and debate, and to become familiar with the modes of conducting business in deliberative assemblies. Each of these societies has its own hall and library.

PRIZES.

At the begining of the present year a prize of fifty dollars was offered, to be awarded to the literary society which proves successful in a contest to take place at the next commencement. This prize is the gift of Rev. David H. Moore, D. D., of Cincinnati and H. M. Lash, M. D., of Athens.

COURSES OF STUDY.

Such courses of study have been adopted as experience has proved to be best adapted to the purposes of liberal education. The classical course, in fulness and arrangement, will compare favorably with that of the best institutions. The scientific course is so arranged as to meet the wants of young men whose circumstances will not permit them to pursue the fuller course of the classical department. It includes all the classical course except the Greek, or the student in this course may elect to follow the classical course, omitting all the Greek and Latin after the Freshman year.

Those who are able to attend for a short time only may take a select course, provided the studies they may wish to pursue are such as they are qualified to take up with advantage. But no student will take a study to which he has not been assigned, or discontinue a study without permission obtained from the faculty.

No students, except Seniors, are permitted to recite in the Senior studies of the third term; and the Senior examinations of the third term are limited to the regular Senior studies of that term.

ELECTIVE STUDIES.

Several elective studies have been introduced into the junior year. Each member of the junior class will be required to take four full studies each term, but he may choose which of the elective studies he will take in addition to those prescribed. If German is selected, it must be continued through the year.

METHODS OF INSTRUCTION.

Instruction is given both by recitations and lectures. The constant aim in both is to awaken interest in study, to aid in the acquisition of knowledge, and to develop the powers of thought and communication.

Lectures are delivered by the President during the first and second terms on psychology, and during the third term on the history of philosophy; by the Professor of ancient classics on the language, literature and history pertaining to that department; and by the Professor of natural sciences on chemistry, geology, and astronomy.

The classes in botany and geology make excursions into the surrounding country that they may collect specimens and derive scientific knowledge from original sources. The class in surveying has practice in the use of instruments by actual work.

MANUALS AND BOOKS OF REFERENCE.

Harkness's, Allen and Greenough's, Zumpt's, and Madvig's Latin Grammars.

Hadley's and Goodwin's Greek Grammars.

Goodwin's Greek Moods and Tenses.

Anthon's Classical Dictionary.

Fiske's Manual of Classical Literature.

Long's Classical Atlas.

Andrew's and Bullion's Latin Lexicons.

Liddell and Scott's and Pickering's Greek Lexicons.

Porter's Human Intellect.

Bain's Mental Science.

Ueberweg's History of Philosophy.

Thalheimer's Ancient and Modern Histories.

ADMISSION.

Applicants for admission must present satisfactory testimonials of good character; and students coming from other colleges must present certificates of honorable dismission.

Examinations for admission are held on the day preceding the begining of the college year, and on the first day of the second and third terms of the year. Candidates will therefore be present September 5th, 1876. December 2nd, 1876, and March 27th, 1877.

Candidates for advanced standing are, in all cases, examined in the studies previously pursued by the class which they propose to enter, or, if they come from other institutions, are required to present certificates stating that they have pursued and have passed examinations upon the same or equivalent studies.

Ladies are admitted to all departments of the University on the same terms and under the same conditions as those prescribed for young men.

DISCIPLINE.

Entering the University will be considered a pledge to obey its rules and regulations. These are few and simple, appealing to the student's self-respect and personal responsibility.

A record is made of the daily work of each student. When the standing of a student, as shown by this record and the examinations, falls below a certain mark, he must review the study.

Records are kept also of each student's deportment. A low standing on either record is followed by private reproof and admonition, and notice is given to the parent or guardian.

Whenever the conduct of a student is such as to indicate that he is unfit to be a member of the University, either because of immorality or because of habitual neglect of his college duties, he will be dismissed. But in the latter case his parents shall first be requested to withdraw him, and if not withdrawn within a reasonable time, he will be dismissed.

RELIGIOUS INFLUENCE.

The University is not sectarian, and no effort is made to inculcate the doctrines of any particular creed or denomination; but care is taken to promote sound and healthy religious sentiments. Students are required to be present at prayers in the the chapel every morning; and a lecture is delivered in the chapel every Sabbath afternoon, at which attendance is also required.

DEGREES.

The degree of Bachelor of Arts is conferred on those who finish the entire classical course, and pass satisfactory examinations.

The degree of Master of Arts is conferred, on the payment of ten dollars, upon every Bachelor of Arts of three years' standing, who has sustained a good moral character and has pursued professional or scientific studies during that period. The application must be made in person or by letter at least one day before commencement.

The degree of Bachelor of Science is conferred on those who complete the scientific course.

The degree of Master of Science is conferred on Bachelors of Science of three years standing, on the same conditions as those for the degree of Master of Arts.

EXPENSES.

The term fees, which are payable to the treasurer of the University on or before the first day each term, are,—

TUITION	$10.00.
ROOM RENT	$3.00 or 4.00.
CONTINGENT EXPENSES	$3.00.

In the preparatory department the charges are,—

TUITION	$6.00.

The other fees in this department are the same as in the college classes.

One student from each county of the State is admitted free of charge for tuition. Any one desiring to have the benefit of a county scholarship must receive his appointment to it from the Auditor and Commissioners of the county, and obtain from them a certificate stating that he is of good moral character and an actual resident of the county from which he is sent.

All students, whether they hold scholarships or not, are charged for room-rent and contingent expenses, and are held liable for any damage that may be done to their rooms.

Board can be obtained within a convenient distance of the University at $3.00 per week. By forming clubs many of the students board at $2.00 per week. Those students whose circumstances require it are allowed to board themselves, and by this means their expenses may be still further reduced.

The actual cost of an education at the University will depend very much upon the disposition and habits of the student. The necessary cost is very low—as low as at any other institution affording equal advantages. It is earnestly recommended to parents not to furnish their sons or daughters with extravagant means. The scholarship and character of a student are often injured by a free indulgence in the use of money. Whatever is beyond a reasonable supply exposes him to numerous temptations and endangers his happiness and respectability.

IN MEMORIAM.

During the last year the board of trustees has lost two of its oldest members by the hand of death. At the annual meeting, June 23d, 1875, the board passed the following memorial resolutions:

HON. BELLAMY STORER.

Resolved, That it is with profound sorrow that we learn of the death of Hon. Bellamy Storer, for many years a faithful, efficient, and honored member of this board, and that in his death the Ohio University has suffered an irreparable loss, and the cause of education has been deprived of one of its best friends and supporters.

Resolved, That while we mourn the decease of Judge Storer, we rejoice to know he still lives in the influence and bright example of his long and useful life. His varied and extensive learning, his spotless life, and his untiring activity in the cause of "religion, morality and knowledge," are, in a high and beautiful sense, still living realities, and will long continue to be living agencies for good.

Resolved, That these resolutions be published in the next annual catalogue of the university and that a copy be sent to the widow of the deceased.

Resolved, That as a mark of respect to the memory of the deceased, this board do now adjourn.

HON. J. H. KEITH.

Judge Keith became a student of this college in..... During his senior year a difficulty between the faculty and the Philomathean society, of which he was a member, led to his withdrawal a short time before commencement. He did not, consequently, receive his diploma until some years after.

He was an earnest friend of education, and, since his appointment as a trustee in 1844, he has always showed a warm interest in everything connected with this institution. During the past year, he frequently expressed his wish to be present at this meeting.

Judge Keith was eminently social in his nature. He was courteous, and tolerant of opinions differing from his own. Kind and forgiving, he cherished no enmities. He was fond of the society of young men, and loved to cheer them with judicious praise and kindly advice. There were few subjects on which he did not talk well His extensive knowledge of general literature, combined with his genial manners, made his conversation singularly attractive.

Resolved, That we deplore in the death of our colleague, Judge Keith, a warm and capable friend of this university.

Resolved, That we give his memory that respect which living his virtues won, and that we tender to his family our heartfelt sympathy in their sad bereavement.

NOTICE.

In the preparation of this Catalogue, much difficulty has been experienced, on account of the numerous dates to be consulted, and the many items to be incorporated in its pages. Yet no time nor labor has been spared that could add to the accuracy or completeness of the work. Still, it is to be expected, errors will be found. Of omissions, there are many—since, in several instances, no trace of alumni could be found after their departure from the University. And again, certain persons were relied upon to furnish information until it was too late to apply elsewhere. It is hoped that the officers, alumni, and others, will be active and prompt in correcting errors and supplying omissions, for a future edition.

Much information has been collected which does not appear in the Catalogue, and much more is desired, that it may be filed away in the University Library, for future reference, and that it may be available, at some future time, as material for a history of the University. Communications on this subject may be addressed to R. S. Devol, Secretary of the Faculty.

OHIO UNIVERSITY.*

The history of the Ohio University dates from the first years of the Republic. The ordinance providing for its existence and support was passed by the Continental Congress in July, 1787, while the Constitutional Convention was still in session at Philadelphia. The provision thus made preceded the first encroachment of civilization upon the vast wilderness west of the Alleghenies, and was an integral part of the foundation laid for the political and social fabric which has since been reared in the North-west. It was secured through the agency of the Ohio Company. This association had been organized in Boston the previous year to purchase "lands in the Western Territory belonging to the United States, for the benefit of the Company, and to promote a settlement in that country." Its origin and success were mainly due to General Rufus Putnam and Rev. Manasseh Cutler, LL. D.,—the former having suggested and organized the Company and having led the first band of emigrants to the banks of the Ohio; the latter having conducted the necessary negotiations with the general Government.

*While the writer of this sketch has availed himself of all the original sources of information that were accessible to him, he desires to acknowledge his obligations to Walker's excellent History of Athens County, Ohio.

RUFUS PUTNAM.

Rufus Putman was a native of Sutton, Mass., and was born April 9, 1738. Having learned to read, and having by industry and self-denial obtained money enough to buy a spelling-book and an arithmetic, he succeeded in laying the foundation of very respectable acquirements. At fifteen he became the apprentice of a millwright at Brookfield. Here he continued his studies as well as he was able, and by the time his apprenticeship expired had made himself a fair English scholar.

In 1757 he enlisted as a private soldier and fought for the British king during the French and Indian War. At the beginning of the Revolution he entered the American army with the commission of a lieutenant colonel. The next year he was promoted to the rank of colonel, and appointed engineer; and before the close of the war he was commissioned as a brigadier-general.

About this time he joined a number of military officers in a petition to Congress for a grant of land in the West; and was recognized as the most prominent and influential among them in the effort to secure their object. "The signers expect," he wrote to General Washington, "that I will pursue measures to have it laid before Congress." In his correspondence with General Washington upon this subject, appears, for the first time, the suggestion that the Government should provide endowments of land for education:—"The whole tract is supposed to contain about seventeen million, four hundred and eighteen thousand, two hundred and forty acres, and will admit of seven hundred and fifty-six townships of six miles square, allowing to each township three thousand and forty acres for the ministry, schools, waste land, rivers, ponds and higways." [Letter to Washington, June 16, 1783.] The effort, however, failed.

For some years after this, General Putnam filled the position of State surveyor and land agent; and when Congress passed, May 20, 1785, an ordinance providing for the survey of the public lands, he was offered the appointment of surveyor. This he declined, as he could not enter upon the duties of the office without some delay. His friend General Tupper was therefore appointed "with authority to perform the duties of the office, until Mr. Putnam shall actually join the geographer and take the duties upon himself." [Journals of Congress, July 18, 1785.]

During the next winter Putnam and Tupper agreed to take steps toward the purchase of a large tract of Western land and the planting of a colony of emigrants on it. In pursuance of this agreement they published, January 25, 1786, an announcement of their purpose, and invited all persons who wished to join them in it to send delegates to meet at the Bunch of Grapes Tavern in Boston, Wednesday March 1, 1786, "then and there to consider and determine on a general plan of association."

At the meeting held in consequence of this notice, General Putnam was chosen to preside. He was also made chairman of the committee to draft a plan of organization. His name stands among those of the first directors; and when arrangements for emigration had been decided on, it was ordered "that General Rufus Putnam be the superintendent of all the business aforesaid, and he is to be obeyed and respected accordingly." By this action he was placed in the position of chief responsibility and power. He exercised the supreme authority on the westward journey, and in the affairs of the infant community, till the arrival of Governor St. Clair. He was the first judge of the court of common pleas appointed in the territory, and also the first judge of the courts of general quarter sessions. To him Dr. Cutler sent his draft for a charter of the University, and he was a trustee of the institution from the date of its origin to the close of his life. He died at Marietta, O., in 1824.

MANASSEH CUTLER.

Manasseh Cutler was born at Killingly, Conn., May 3, 1742. At the age of twenty-three years he graduated at Yale, and at twenty-nine was settled over the church in Ipswich, Mass. He was soon recognized as a minister of ability and learning; but became even more widely known as a man of science. As a botanist, especially, he attained considerable distinction. He was elected a member of the American Academy of Arts and Sciences in 1781; a member of the Philosophical Society of Philadelphia in 1783; an honorary member of the Massachusetts Medical Society in 1784; received the degree of LL. D. from Yale college in 1789; was elected a member of the Massachusetts Historical Society in 1792, and was a representative in Congress in 1800–1802.

He appeared in Boston March 1, 1786, as a delegate to the meeting for the formation of the Ohio Company; was appointed one of the committee to draft a plan of organization; was chosen one of the first directors; and was selected by the directors to contract with Congress for the purchase of land. He actually conducted the whole business to its conclusion; though, toward the last, it assumed such proportions that he desired Major Sargent secretary of the Company, who was at that time in New York, to share the responsibility. Accordingly the contract was signed by both of them.

In 1788, after the first emigrants had made some progress in their settlement at Marietta, he spent a few weeks among them, and to the end of his life he never ceased to be their valued and influential counselor. He died in Massachusetts in 1820.

ORDINANCES OF CONGRESS.

The contract of the Ohio Company for the purchase of land from Congress, comprehended as a basis, the congressional provisions for the government of the Northwest Territory. When the ordinance for this purpose had been prepared, a copy of it was sent by the Committee to Dr. Cutler "with leave to make remarks and propose amendments." [Dr. Cutler's Journal, July 10, 1787.] He suggested several amendments, all of which were adopted, except one, and even in respect to that the ordinance was so modified as to conform more nearly to his wishes. He desired that emigrants to the Territory should not be subject to taxation by the national government, unless they enjoyed a full representation in Congress. The provision actually adopted was the result of a compromise.

A careful investigation of circumstances and a comparison of dates, renders it highly probable, if not certain, that the articles of compact with which the ordinance of 1787 concludes, were suggested, perhaps even written, by Dr. Cutler. They fell in with his designs, whereas it was plainly opposed to the immediate interest of the older States. "It was, of all things, the very means of rendering certain a vast emigration from her [New England's] own population to the West." [Webster's first speech on Foot's Resolution.] The evidence is especially strong that Dr. Cutler originated the third article, which declares that "religion, morality, and knowledge being necessary to good government and to the happiness of mankind, schools and the means of education shall forever be encouraged." This ordinance, of which Mr. Webster said in 1830, "I doubt whether one single law of any lawgiver, ancient or modern, has produced effects of more distinct, marked, and lasting character," was passed July 13, 1787. On the 17th, Dr. Cutler returned from Philadelphia, where he had spent a few days, and the next day entered upon the special business to which the Company had appointed him. On the 23d, just ten days after the passage of the ordinance providing for the government of the Territory, another ordinance was passed fixing terms of sale for the tract afterwards purchased by the Ohio Company, and empowering the Board of Treasury to contract. This ordinance not being entirely acceptable to Dr. Cutler, he and Major Sargent addressed a letter to the Board of Treasury, refusing to enter into contract, unless certain modifications were made in the terms. Finally, on the 27th, Congress passed a new ordinance, meeting the demands presented and insisted on with so much energy by Dr. Cutler.

In these ordinances it was provided that section sixteen in each township should be set apart for the support of schools; that section twenty-nine should be set apart for the support of religion; and that "not more than two complete townships should be given perpetually for the purposes of an University, to be laid off by the purchaser or purchasers as near the center as may be (so that the same shall be of good land), to be applied to the intended object by the Legislature of the State."

Such, in its remote beginnings, was the origin of the Ohio University. It was the first example in the history of our country, of the establishment and endowment of an institution of learning by the direct agency of the general government. The honor of it belongs almost exclusively to Manasseh Cutler, and when we consider the influence which he has exerted, through the ordinances of July, 1787, upon the civilization of the Northwest, it is, perhaps, not too much to say, that to him, more than to any other individual, we are indebted for the prosperity, the freedom, and the intelligence of that extensive and populous region.

THE CONTRACT.

The contract was concluded October 27, 1787. By it the Ohio Company obtained optional possession of a body of land having for its southern boundary the Ohio river, for its eastern boundary the seventh range of townships, for its western boundary the eighteenth range of townships, and extending northward so far that a straight line running east and west would include a million and a half of acres, besides the several townships and sections reserved or appropriated to specific purposes. Only half this amount, however, was ever paid for and controlled by them.

No time was lost in making an actual settlement. On the seventh of April, 1788, a colony, under the leadership of General Putnam, landed at the confluence of the Ohio and Muskingum rivers. A month before this event, at a meeting of the Company held in Boston, the directors were requested "to pay as early attention as possible to the education of youth and the promotion of public worship among the first settlers." Dr. Cutler was accordingly authorized to employ a suitable person as instructor. He soon afterwards secured the services of Rev. Daniel Story, and a school was organized at Marietta the ensuing winter.

UNIVERSITY LANDS SELECTED.

In 1795 the lands to be devoted to the support of the University were located. The townships selected were numbers eight and nine in the fourteenth range, now called Athens and Alexander. Gen. Putnam, who felt a deep interest in the proposed institution, used his influence to secure settlers for the college lands. The first families removed to them in 1797, and fixed their residence on and near the present site of the town of Athens, the seat of the University. Two years later, Dec. 18, 1799, the Territorial Legislature appointed Rufus Putnam, Benjamin Ives Gilman, and Jonathan Stone, "to lay off in the most suitable place within the townships, a town plat which should contain a square for the college; also, lots suitable for house lots and gardens for a president, professors, tutors, etc., bordering on or encircled by spacious commons, and such a number of town lots adjoining the said commons and outlots as they shall think will be for the advantage of the University." This work having been done, a resolution was adopted by the Legislature, Dec. 6, 1800, approving and accepting it. In that year, also, Dr. Cutler sent to Gen. Putnam his draft of an incorporating act for the University. The first section gave to the institution the name of the American University, and in a letter which accompanied the draft, he said: "As the American Congress made the grant which is the foundation of the University, no name appeared to me more natural than American University. The sound is natural, easy and agreeable, and no name can be more respectable. There is a Columbian college and a Washington college, etc., already in the country, but no American college. I hope the name will not be altered."

It is evident from this passage that the founders of the University entertained large expectations of its future. The same fact is no less manifest from Dr. Cutler's comments on the eighth section of his draft. Speaking of a limitation of the income by the Legislature, he said: "Forty and fifty thousand dollars can not be too high, as it must be applied to one of the most useful and important purposes to society and to government. The sums sound large, but no one can say to what amount the income of the endowments of this University may arrive in time. The income of Oxford and Cambridge in England is much greater."

TERRITORIAL ACT OF 1802, ESTABLISHING THE UNIVERSITY.

In January, 1802, an act based on the draft of Dr. Cutler, was passed, entitled "an act establishing an University in the town of Athens." (1 sess., 2 G. A. T. 161.) Section 1 established and located the University under the name of the American Western University. Section 2 provided for the perpetual existence of "a body politic and corporate, by the name and style of 'The President and Trustees of the American Western University.'" Section 3 appointed the trustees, to-wit: Hon. Rufus Putnam, Joseph Gilman, Return Jonathan Meigs, Jr., Paul Fearing, Rev. Daniel Story, Griffin Greene, Robert Oliver, Ebenezer Sproat, Dudley Woodbridge, and Isaac Pierce. Section 11 vested in the board of trustees "townships eight and nine in the fourteenth range for the sole use, benefit and support of the University, with full powers and authority to divide, subdivide, settle and manage the same, by leasing. * * * * Provided, that no lease shall be made for a longer term of time than twenty-one years." Section 14 exempted the college lands with the buildings that might be erected thereon from Territorial and State taxation.

ACT OF STATE LEGISLATURE ESTABLISHING THE UNIVERSITY.

Nothing was done to carry into effect the provisions of this act, and in 1804, February 18th, after the admission of Ohio into the Union, another act was passed, like the former in its main features, yet containing some important modifications (2 O. L. 205). Section 1 gave to the institution its present name, the Ohio University, and defined its object to be "the instruction of youth in all the various branches of liberal arts and sciences, the promotion of good education, virtue, religion and morality, and conferring all the degrees and literary honors granted in similar institutions." Section 2 provided for the corporate existence of the board of trustees, and made the Governor of the State a member of the board ex officio. Section 3 appointed as trustees Elijah Backus, Rufus Putnam, Dudley Woodbridge, Benjamin Tappan, Bazaliel Wells, Nathaniel Massie, Daniel Symmes, Daniel Story, Samuel Carpenter, James Kilbourne, Griffin Greene, Sen., and Joseph Darlington. The number of trustees was to be not less than ten nor more than fifteen. At present the legal number is twenty-one, of whom the Governor of the State and the President of the University are members ex officio; the others are nominated by the board and confirmed by the General Assembly. No political or religious tests are applied. Vacancies occur only by death, resignation, removal or expulsion. Section 11 provided for the subdivision of the college lands into tracts of not less eighty nor more than two hundred and forty acres; the valuation of them by three disinterested and judicious freeholders as in their orginal and unimproved state; and the leasing of the same "for the term of ninety years, renewable forever, on a yearly rent of six per centum on the amount of the valuation so made by the said freeholders; and the land so leased shall be subject to a revaluation at the expiration of thirty-five years, and to another revaluation at the expiration of sixty years, from the commencement of the term of each lease; which revaluation shall be conducted and made on the principles of the first, and the lessee shall pay a yearly rent of six per centum on the amount of the valuation so to be made; and forever thereafter on a yearly rent equal to and not exceeding six per centum of the amount of a valuation, to be made as aforesaid, at the expiration of the term of ninety years aforesaid. * * * * Provided always, that the corporation shall have power to demand a further yearly rent on the said lands and tenements, not exceeding the amount of the tax imposed on property of like description by the State."

Section 17 exempted the lands in the two townships, with the buildings on them, from all State taxes forever.

This act is the charter under which the institution was organized, and has ever since continued to operate.

The following year an act was passed (3 O. L. 79), modifying, in some respects, the law of 1804. In particular, it provided that the trustees should lease the lands for ninety-nine years, renewable forever, with a fixed annual rent of six per centum on the appraised valuation.

About 2,000 acres of this land have been sold in fee simple; the rest, amounting to more than 44,000 acres, is still vested in the University, but, being under perpetual lease it can never yield more than a scanty revenne.

ATHENS.

The town of Athens, in which the University is located, contains nearly three thousand inhabitants. It is about twenty-five miles from the Ohio river, on the line of the Marietta and Cincinnati railroad, and at the southeastern terminus of the Columbus and Hocking Valley railroad. By these roads it is easily accessible from the eastern, western and central portions of the State.

UNIVERSITY BUILDINGS.

The buildings are of brick, and are eligibly situated in the southeastern part of the town. The grounds contain ten acres, about one-third of which, lying in front, is covered with a handsome growth of trees, and an equal portion in the rear is reserved for recreation.

The number of buildings is three. The middle building was erected in 1817. It is eighty-two feet long by fifty wide, and is three stories high. It contains the library, the chemical and philosophical apparatus, the museum, three recitation rooms, two society halls, and fifteen domitories. The wings are each sixty feet long by forty feet wide, and are three stories high. The east wing was completed in 1837, and contains one recitation room, the rest of it being devoted to dormitories. The west wing was completed in 1839, and contains the chapel and two recitation rooms, the remaining rooms being dormitories. The basement and attic of the middle building are both in use. Recent repairs have placed the buildings in a much improved condition.

The original building, called the Academy, was erected in 1808–9. It stood east of the present buildings and extended beyond the present enclosure. It was a two-story brick building, about twenty-four feet by thirty, containing one room on each floor. For ten years this was the only building belonging to the institution. After the college classes were oganized, the lower room was occupied by the preparatory department, while the upper one accommodated the apparatus. The building was removed many years ago.

FIRST INSTRUCTION.

In this building the first instruction of the institution was given. It was opened for the reception of students, June 1st, 1809. The course of instruction laid down by the board, June 9, 1808, consisted of "the English, Latin, and Greek languages, mathematics, rhetoric, logic, geography, natural and moral philosophy."

Rev. Jacob Lindley was the only teacher, and on the first day but three pupils were present, John Perkins, Brewster Higley, and Joel Abbott. Mr. Perkins is still living, a respected citizen of Athens.

JACOB LINDLEY.

Mr. Lindley, the preceptor, was born in Pennsylvania, June 13, 1774, graduated at Princeton in 1798, and was installed as pastor of the Presbyterian church in Waterford, O., in 1803. In 1805 he was appointed a trustee of the Ohio University. From 1808 to 1822 he was president of the board, and preceptor of the Academy; from 1822 to 1824, professor of rhetoric and moral philosophy; from 1824 to 1826, professor of mathematics. His connection with the board of trustees continued till 1838, when it was dissolved by reason of his removal to the State of Mississippi. He died in his native State, January 29th, 1857. In 1812 Artemas Sawyer, a graduate of Harvard, was employed as Mr. Lindley's assistant. In 1818 Joseph Dana was employed as professor of Latin and Greek.

The first degrees were conferred in 1815. Thomas Ewing and John Hunter, having completed the course of study, received, in that year, the degree of Bachelor of Arts.

THOMAS EWING.

Mr. Ewing's name stands first on the roll of alumni, not only for this institution, but for the whole of Western America. He was born in Ohio Co.,Va., Dec. 28, 1789. In 1792 his father removed to Ohio, residing first on the Muskingum river, near Waterford, and afterward in what is now Ames Tp., Athens Co. Having learned to read, he eagerly devoured the contents of the collection of books then recently purchased by the contributions of the neighbors who had organized among themselves the "Western Library Association," and which formed the pioneer public library of Ohio. In 1808 he went to the Kanawha salt works, where he earned money enough to support himself for a few terms at the Ohio University. Whenever his means were exhausted, he returned to Virginia and earned more. In this way he succeeded in completing his course.

In the summer of 1815 he removed to Lancaster, O., where he studied law, and in 1816 was admitted to the bar. His abilities were at once recognized, and his progress to professional success and distinction was uninterrupted. From 1831 to 1837 he was U. S. Senator from Ohio, and took a distinguished part in the discussions of that stormy period. In 1841 he was appointed Secretary of the Treasury. In 1849 he was made Secretary of the Interior. On the death of President Taylor, he retired from the cabinet; but, Mr. Corwin being appointed Secretary of the Treasury, Mr. Ewing re-enterd the senate to complete Mr. Corwin's unexpired term. In 1851 he resumed the practice of law at Lancaster. He died Oct., 26, 1871.

FACULTY ORGANIZED.

A full faculty was organized in 1822. Rev. James Irvine, A. M., was chosen president, and professor of mathematics; Rev. Jacob Lindley, professor of rhetoric and moral philosophy; Joseph Dana, of languages; and Henry D. Ward, preceptor. The next year Rev. Samuel D. Hoge was appointed professor of natural sciences. The other presidents have been—Rev. Robert G. Wilson, D. D., 1824–39; Rev. William H. McGuffey, D. D. LL. D., 1839–43; Rev. Alfred Ryors, D. D., 1848–52; Rev. Solomon Howard, D. D. LL. D., 1852–72; William H. Scott, A. M., 1873 to the present time.

REV. JAMES IRVINE, A. M.

the first president of the Ohio University, was born in Washington County, New York. Immediately after his graduation at Union College, he was elected professor of mathematics in the university in 1831; and in the following year became the president. Owing ill-health, he was the next spring allowed leave of absence, and never returned to his post. He lived for a time in New York City, and was afterward settled as pastor over a Presbyterian congregation in West Hebron, New York.

REV. ROBERT G. WILSON, D. D.,

was a native of North Carolina, and was born Dec. 30, 1768. He graduated at Dickinson College, Carlisle, Pa., and after studying theology, was ordained to preach May 22, 1794. He spent the first ten or eleven years of his ministry in Abbeville district, S. C.; removed thence, in 1805, to Chillicothe, O., where he was for nineteen years pastor of the Presbyterian Church. In 1824, he was elected president of the Ohio University, and during the next fourteen years administered its affairs with ability and success. In 1838, at the age of seventy, he resigned his position. He continued to preach for about nine years. The last four years of his life were spent in the family of his daughter, Mrs. Mary W. Irwin, at South Salem O., where he died April 17, 1851.

REV. WILLIAM HOLMES McGUFFEY, D. D., LL. D.,

was born in Washington County, Penn., September 23d 1800. When he was but a child, his parents removed to Trumbull County, Ohio. He prepared himself for college, and entered Washington College, Penn., of which Dr. Wiley was at the time President. In March 1826, he was elected professor of ancient languages in Miami University, Ohio; and in 1832, he was transferred to the chair of Mental Philosophy.

He was licensed as a minister of the Presbyterian Church in 1829. In 1836, he was chosen President of Cincinnati College. This position he held until chosen President of the Ohio University in 1839.

In 1843, he returned to Cincinnati, and taught in the Woodward High School. In 1845, he was chosen Professor of Moral Philosophy in the University of Virginia, where he continued until his death, May 4th, 1873.

He was author of McGuffey's Electic Readers and Spelling Book, perhaps the most popular and useful books of the kind ever published. At the time of his death he was engaged in preparing for the press a work on Mental Science, but it wasnot left in shape for publication.

REV. ALFRED RYORS, D. D.

Rev. Alfred Ryors, D.D., was born in Philadelphia, June 28, 1812. Being left an orphan at a very early age, he was received into the family and select school of Rev. Robert Steel, D. D., at Abington, Pa. He graduated at Jefferson College, Pa., in 1835. The next year he was tutor in Lafayette College, and in May, 1836, he was elected professor of mathematics in the Ohio University. He entered upon the duties of his professorship the next autumn, and remained till 1844. In that year he was called to the same chair in Indiana State University. In 1848 he was elected president of the Ohio University, and filled the office for four years.

In 1852 he resigned, and the following year became president of Indiana University. At the end of a year he accepted the chair of mathematics in Center College, Ky., where he remained till the time of his death, May 8th, 1858.

was born in Cincinnati, November 11, 1811. At 22 he graduated at Augusta College, Kentucky. He was elected to a professorship in St. Charles College, Mo. He entered the Ohio Conference of the M. E. Church in 1835; was elected principal of the preparatory department of the Ohio Wesleyan University in 1843, and principal of Springfield High School in 1845. On leaving this position he became president of Springfield Female College; and in 1852 was elected president of the Ohio University. He retained this office till 1872, when, on account of ill-health, he resigned. He died at San Jose, Cal., June 9, 1873.

EXPENSES.

The term fees are: Tuition, $10.00; room rent, $3.00 or $4.00; and contingent fee, $3.00.

In the preparatory department the charge for tuition is $6.00. The other fees in this department are the same as in the college classes.

One student from each county of the State is admitted free of charge for tuition. Any one desiring to have the benefit of a county scholarship must receive his appointment to it from the Auditor and Commissioners of the county, and obtain from them a certificate stating that he is of good moral character and an actual resident of the county from which he is sent.

RELIGIOUS INFLUENCE.

The University is not sectarian, and no effort is made to inculcate the doctrines of any particular creed or denomination; but care is taken to promote sound and healthy religious sentiments. Students are required to be present at prayers in the chapel every morning; and a lecture is delivered in the chapel every Sabbath afternoon, at which attendance is also required.

PREPARATORY DEPARTMENT.

The studies prescribed are those enumerated above as required for admission to the college classes.

While this department is specially designed to prepare students for the regular courses of the College department, students are also received who may wish to pursue elementary studies, even though they may have no intention of entering upon one of the higher courses.

Candidates for admission must furnish satisfactory evidence of good character, and must pass an examination in arithmetic to percentage, English grammar to syntax, geography, and all studies of the course lower than those which they wish to pursue.

LIBRARIES.

The college library contains between 4000 and 5000 volumes. In the first years of its history it received many valuable books by donation. One donation, made by General Putnam and a royal donation from England were of special importance. The latter, received in 1834, was estimated at £200., and included complete editions of standard authors in classical, historical, scientific and theological literature, amounting in all to more than 70 volumes.

The institution has no library fund, and therefore the growth of the library is neither rapid nor uniform ; yet a few good books are placed in it every year.

The libraries of the literary societies contain about 2500 volumes, and are receiving considerable additions.

APPARATUS AND CABINET.

The department of natural science possesses apparatus estimated at $1,000, and collections in botany, zoology, mineralogy, and geology estimated at about $2,000.

SOCIETIES.

There are two literary societies connected with the University—the Athenian founded in 1819 and the Philomathean founded in 1822. The former has had a total membership of 1312, and the latter of 1273. The Athenian library contains nearly 1200 volumes, the Philomathean nearly 1400.

PROSPECTS.

Earnest efforts are now being made to increase the endowment of the institution, and there is ground for hope that its future will be worthy of its origin and early history.

ALUMNI.

[The College Classes were first organized in 1820. Those who graduated previous to that time completed a full collegiate course, and from time to time received their degrees, though not always at the time or in the order of their departure from the University. We have followed the record, except in the case of Dr. Hempstead, who it seems was the first to leave the University, though his diploma was not awarded until 1816, and there is no other record of his Bachelor's Degree until 1820. We give the date of the diploma as the proper date of the degree.]
